To help ensure the safety of patients taking prescription medicine in Bangladesh, AmeriCares collaborated with GSK and local health organizations to train pharmacy clerks in Mymensingh. With our training, pharmacy clerks at one hospital now have the knowledge to safely dispense medicine, including providing patients with information on completing their treatment—a crucial instruction in low-resource countries where improper use of antibiotics leads to antibiotic-resistant infections. The pharmacy clerks are trained to pass the knowledge to others, creating a culture of safety and responsibility.

Improving patient safety is a goal in Bangladesh.
